Subject: Health Care Could Be Deciding Factor in Close Kansas Senate Race

Date: October 21, 2020

A new Public Policy Polling survey finds that health care is shaping up to be a potentially decisive issue in the Kansas Senate race. A total of 90% of voters say it's either the most important issue (22%), a very important issue (46%), or a somewhat important issue (23%) when deciding who to vote for in the Senate race –this includes 58% of both Republican and independent voters. Voters trust Barbara Bollier over Roger Marshall on key issues related to healthcare and the Affordable Care Act (ACA) and disagree with key Republican positions on healthcare. A majority of 51% of voters say they do not think the ACA should be struck down by the courts, which is leading to trouble for Roger Marshall:

- A plurality of 45% of voters say they're less likely to vote for Marshall due to his vote to repeal the Affordable Care Act with no replacement.
- 46% say they trust Barbara Bollier more on the issue of health care (including 22% of Republicans) while 42% say they trust Roger Marshall more. They also trust Bollier more by a 10-point margin (52-42) on who will protect people with preexisting conditions.

Additionally, voters express serious concerns over the consequences of striking down the ACA.

- 61% say that eliminating protections stopping insurance companies from denying coverage or raising the costs of care for 135 million Americans with pre-existing conditions is a major concern, including 42% of Republicans. Just 22% are not concerned.
- 58% say they have major concerns about over twenty million Americans completely losing their health insurance coverage if the ACA is struck down, including 38% of Republicans, while only 24% have no concerns.

All this adds up to a very close Senate race, with Barbara Bollier and Roger Marshall each getting 43% with Libertarian Jason Buckley at 5% and 9% of voters undecided. It's important to note that the undecideds for Senate are voting for Trump by 54 points, suggesting Marshall has room to grow. But concerns over his record on health care are giving him trouble with independents and the party base, and illustrating the importance of the healthcare issue in the race overall.

Public Policy Polling surveyed 897 Kansas voters from October 19-20, 2020. The margin of error is +/- 3.3%. 50% of interviews for the survey were conducted by telephone and 50% by text message on behalf of Protect Our Care.

Do not think it should be struck down 51%
Not sure 14%

Q12 Now I am going to read you a list of consequences that independent, nonpartisan analysts have identified could result from this court case striking down our health care laws, and then ask you whether you find that to be a major concern about the lawsuit, a minor concern, or not really a concern at all. Here's the first one: striking down the health care law would allow insurance companies to stop covering the costs of prescription drugs. Is losing guaranteed coverage for the costs of prescription drugs a major concern to you about this lawsuit, a minor concern, or not really a concern at all?

Major concern 57%
Minor concern 18%
Not really a concern at all 21%
Not sure 3%

Q13 Here's the next one: striking down the health care law would eliminate protections that stop insurance companies from denying coverage or raising the costs for 135 million Americans who have pre-existing medical conditions like cancer, diabetes, asthma, and coronavirus. Is this a major concern to you about this lawsuit, a minor concern, or not really a concern at all?

Major concern 61%
Minor concern 14%
Not really a concern at all 22%
Not sure 3%

Q14 Here's the last one: striking down the health care law would mean over twenty million Americans would completely lose their health insurance coverage. Is this a major concern to you about this lawsuit, a minor concern, or not really a concern at all?

Major concern 58%
Minor concern 15%
Not really a concern at all 24%
